Waveland eyeing renter utility deposit hike, weekend turn-on fee

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen is considering raising natural gas service deposits for renters and imposing a fee to turn on utilities after regular Mayor John Longo reported at a Tuesday night aldermen meeting at City Hall that the Water and Gas Department is suggesting the city increase natural gas service deposits for renters from $100 to $145.

Waveland presently requires the highest deposit amount from renters-except in most modern apartment complexes in which the owner pays for city utilities—when comparing total water, gas and sewerage security payments in nearby Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis.

Each renter in Waveland could pay deposits totalling $205 which includes $55 for water, $50 for sewerage and the $100 for gas.

City utility deposits for homeowners in Waveland total $55 including $25 for gas, $15 for sewerage and $15 for water. a department spokesman said Wednes-

In fact, a Bay utility department spokesman said Wednesday that all residential and commercial customers, except restaurants, at the most pay a $100 deposit plus a $10.60 service charge (which includes 60 cents tax).

A breakdown of the Bay deposits are $60 for gas, $20 for water and $20 for sewerage with the service charge cut in half if gas service is not needed, the spokesman noted.

Pass Christian residential utility deposits at the most total $130, including $45 for gas service which is provided by Entex of Gulfport.

A Pass utility department spokesman said Wednesday that an $85 deposit is required for water which includes a $50 meter deposit and no sewerage deposit is imposed.

An Entex spokesman reported Wednesday that the $45 deposit accrues interest at a rate of eight percent an-

Wastewater officials confer on funds availability

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT Members of the Waveland Wastewater Management District are meeting with Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control officials to try to get a financial commitment for funds to upgrade sewage treatment facilities.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett advised Bay City Council members Tuesday that he and the other wastewater district members-Waveland Mayor and wastewater district chairman John Longo and A.A. (Dolph) Kellar-and wastewater district administrator Ethel Schott would meet today and tomorrow with BPC officials in

According to Bennett, if the wastewater district can get a commitment for 85 percent federal funding the members will move forward with plans for a spray irrigation sewage treatment system.

Otherwise, Bennett indicated, the district would have to look at other alternatives

Those other alternatives for effluent disposal include moving Watts Bayou and Edwards Bayou discharge sites to Jourdan River; moving only the Bay St. Louis sewage lagoon discharge point from Watts to Jourdan and upgrading Waveland sewage treatment; pumping Bay sewage to the Waveland plant for final treatment and discharge into Edwards; deep well injection; and using the Mississippi Sound.

Wastewater district members have said they favor the spray irrigation system but are concerned with costs-estimated at $10 compared to $3 for extension of city outfall lines to the Jourdan River.

Bennett said yesterday that the meeting with the BPC director, his assistant and other staff members will begin at 2 p.m. today.

'We hope to be finished tomorrow afternoon," he said, "but we will stay as long as it takes.'

"We are going to make every effort to make sure that the state and federal monies that Hancock County is entitled to will be available to us," he emphasiz-

Bayou Cadet ice plant may finally be a reality

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR. Bayou Cadet fishermen may finally have a dockside ice manufacturing plant.

Terrell Ladner, a Bayou Cadet fisherman, says he plans to begin construction of a $250,000 ice plant on his property immediately west of the Hancock County-owned Bayou Cadet Marina the Gulf Coast Fishermen's Association who objected at a December Hancock Port and Harbor Commission meeting to a company which had failed to build an ice plant on the property as required by a contract with the county.

An investigative report in the Dec. 15 issue of 'The Sea Coast Echo' revealed that the State Health Department determined that the proximity of a sewage treatment plant serving the marina prevents the digging of a well on county property to serve an ice

The now defunct Bayou Cadet Shell and Fish for this reason could not build the ice plant and two previous prospects have backed out of agreements to for such a facility. However, the health department said an ice plant could probably locate in other areas of the docking area off of the county-owned property there.

Ladner says he plans to build the equivalent of a four-story concrete block building on piling at Bayou Cadet to house machinery which will be capable of producing 30 tons of ice in a 24-hour period and storage area with a 270-ton holding capacity.

He reports that ice will be sold in bulk at dockside to all fishermen and by the bag to the general public.

Ladner expects construction of the building to take about two months, hopefully in time for the Louisiana shrimp season which usually begins in May.

James Rester, Hancock Planning Commission chairman, says the county organization recently allowed Ladner to build the ice storage portion of his building below the required elevation in the low-lying area.

The commission chairman noted Federal Flood Insurance regulations, which the local governing group must enforce, require a minimum 16-foot elevation for the first floor of all newly constructed buildings at Bayou Cadet.

In addition, certain construction methods must be utilized, since the bayou area is designated a velocity zone which means it is prone to storm wave action.

Rester reports although the storage area is close to ground level, the upper floors containing the expensive machinery will be located above the minimum elevation.

The commission variance will allow Ladner to obtain flood insurance and financing, Rester said He noted the commission, in certain instances, will issue elevation variances for commercial ventures.

Ladner says he will drive 50 piling which are 40 feet long to support the upper floors of the building.

The walls will be constructed with 12-inch thick concrete blocks which will be reinforced with poured concrete, he reports.

Ladner adds that the ice making machinery will be located about 27 feet above sea level

The fisherman says about 10 years ago, when he purchased the Bayou Cadet property, he planned to build the ice plant.

'It wasn't feasible until the present day because we have more shrimp boats now," Ladner states.

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT Virginia Guilbeau and her son

Gregory Ladner will be arraigned sometime during the April term of Hancock County Circuit Court on charges of possession with intent to distribute more than 21/2 tons of marijuana, District Attorney Cono Caranna said Monday.

Guilbeau, 56, and Ladner, 34, both of Firetower Road, accompanied by their attorney William F. Dukes of Gulfport. turned themselves in at the sheriff's department Monday afternoon.

They were indicted by a grand jury along with Lezaro Raul Rojas-Chao and Junco Ivan-Martinez, who were arrested March 24 and are in federal custody in Biloxi.

Another man, Albert Llanos-Soto, was arrested March 24 in New Orleans La. by DEA officials and is in custody in Louisians, according to Hancock County Sheriff Rounie Peterson Guilbean and Ladner were released under 2250,000 property bonds each.

The bonds were arranged on Gulbasu's property on Piretower Road. and the properties of Richard and Lin-da Lacoste and Rufus and Margaret

Local authorities became involved in the matter when DEA agents sought their assistance March 24.
After obtaining a search warrant, officials seized a rental truck at the rear of Guilbeau's nome which contained some 5,000 pounds of Colombian marijuana, Peterson said.

utting hospital costs is no problem. Cutting costs where they won't harm hospital services — that's the problem.

If you or a loved one is in the hospital, you want the quality care that comes with an adequate nursing staff, modern diagnostic equipment, the latest surgical techniques and effective medicines.

We are pledged to provide such care.

Recently the federal government enacted new reduce the payments Medicare makes to hospitals for the care of the elderly. Called the Medicare Prospective Payment System, the government hopes the lower payments will force hospitals to operate more efficiently.

While some hospital leaders fear the lower Medicare payments will cause drastic reductions in hospital services, we support the law and believe it can be effective in controlling the cost of healthcare nationwide

We can't speak for other hospitals, but our hospital is already a very efficient one. As a member of Hospital Corporation of America's network of more than 380 hospitals, we enjoy the efficiency of group purchasing and shared services such as education, legal counsel, architectural design and planning.

Today is the big Pilgrimage Day for the Bay-Waveland Garden Club members.

Many of the ladies have been very busy in recent weeks trying to do their best in preparations for the an-

We have noted a tremendous amount of activity around the library in Bay St. Louis, one of the stops on the tour today.

The Arboretum at the library is one of 19 state-wide arboretum systems, sponsored by the Garden Clubs, Inc. to increase public awareness of living plants.

Other spots of interest include Main Street United Methodist Church, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin ('ucullu, luncheon at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club in Bay St. Louis and in Waveland the homes of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Seaton, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Maulden.

Of course, The Bay-Waveland Garden Center on Leonhard Avenue will serve coffee and give information regarding the tour.

We hope many local residents will take advantage of the pilgrimage and join in on the tour.

Efforts have been underway by concerned citizens to have the garbage cleaned along South Street between Clermont Harbor and Waveland.

In a cooperative effort between the City of Waveland and Bert Courrege, District One supervisor, the area was recently cleaned.

This we feel is indeed a tremendous help towards beautification of our area.

It wasn't too long after the clean-up of South Street when a young lady was caught by a Waveland Patrolman throwing a couple bags of garbage out of the window of a vehicle.

She appeared in a local court where she was promptly sentenced to picking up debris along Waveland Streets last Saturday and Sunday, in lieu of a fine, according to Sandra Henley, investigator.

As we have mentioned before, it appears education has to play an important part in beautification. Indications are that the person who was caught this time learned a lesson the hard way.

The Mississippi Welcome Center and NASA's National Space Center Laboratories were pretty busy vesterday with pilgrimage visitors.

We noted several Garden Club members, as well as Home Extension members at the Hospitality Center on I-10 giving an additional welcome for the day.

Of course, we know Patti Lady and crew does a very fine job for the state in welcoming tourists throughout

The Welcome Center has meant a lot to Hancock County and the Coast, and we feel is one of the best in the state as well as the nation.

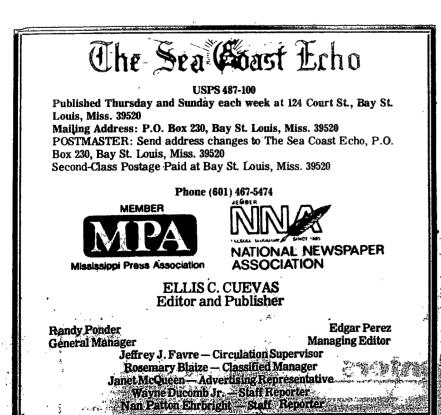

On Friday there will be a Blood Drawing at Bay Senior High School from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Blood Drawing will be conducted by the American Red Cross and Hancock County Blood Bank. As always, there is a shortage of blood and we hope Bay High's students and faculty will respond as they have in the past. It is so good to see our young people interested in our community activities.

Biloxi news media attentive to Diamondhead Pilgrimage

To the Editor:

There are usually positive and negative aspects to almost any given situation, and they both exist in the one

On the positive side, the officers and members of the Diamondhead Garden Club want to thank the Sea Coast Echo for the excellent newspaper coverage their monthly meetings have received this entire year; it has been recorded so well each month that for the first time since the club was organized it will be possible to compile and submit a publicity book of evidence for an award from the Garden Clubs of Mississippi,

We are glad that the Echo realizes that garden clubs are not social clubs, but are made up of members whose foremost interest lies in bettering their

As a matter of fact, all federated garden clubs are required to include in their yearly programs ten or more of the objectives of the State and National Council garden clubs - some of which are energy conservation, civio development, creating bird sanctuaries, establishing memorial gardens, extensive study of horticulture, sponsorship of scholarships for junior, intermediate and high school age youths, study of landscape design, participation in a world gardening project, flower show schools, and litter control, to name a

The big thrust of garden clubs' work this year is the planting of wildflowers. Garden clubs all over the state, assisted by the Highway Commission, have planted strategic areas with wildflower seeds, not only to beautify the highways and byways for all passersby, but especially for those visitors on their way to the New Orleans World's Fair as they pass through Mississippi.

The negative side of the situation arises because the Diamondhead Garden Club members felt a distinct disappointment in the coverage the Echo gave the recent pilgrimage held

One picture of one home was all that the paper ever published. Can it be that the staff at the Echo fails to realize the importance of publicizing the pilgrimages?

No, that can't be the answer, for just one week after the Diamondhead pilgrimage received no publicity their sister club, the Bay-Waveland Garden Club (who had the happy privilege of seeing that the Diamondhead Club was federated) received excellent coverage of the pilgrimage held in the Bay St. Louis and Waveland area.

Those who opened their homes in Diamondhead were given guest books, and a check of those books showed that over 300 visitors from dozens of states went through each home and garden.

Diamondhead is an extremely attractive community, and those who opened their homes do so with great pride; many of the garden club's members were involved- acting as assistant hostesses at each home, or perhaps making the beautiful floral arrangements that appeared in the various rooms.

How disappointing then not to have support through publicity from their hometown newspaper!

The Daily-Herald printed the entire Diamondhead tour; Channel 13 sent a camera crew and took pictures of many homes which were shown twice that evening on TV.

So it would seem it is considered important news by others. We are all extremely disappointed that such an important Diamondhead Garden Club event did not receive coverage in the Sea Coast Echo.

Attorney general may sue state agencies

You Are The Client Many recent news stories have concerned the role of the Attorney General's Office in legal battles to recover funds from various elected officials and former elected officials.

Judging from letters and phone calls received in this office, the public is interested in whether or not officials who are convicted of embezzling funds, or who have admitted losing revenues for the counties by bad management, can be forced to repay these funds.

One question asked repeatedly: when does the county take legal action and when does it become the attorney general's responsibility?

Another question: does the state or county have to provide legal counsel for officials who are facing criminal trials or civil suits for acts they may have committed against the citizens of the

The attorney general's clients are the citizens of the state; all legal acitons filed or defended by this office rest on that

If a lawsuit filed against a public official could result in a monetary loss to the state or a state agency, the attorney general will defend the official.

When city or county officials are sued, the defense is usually left to the county or municipality. However, the Attorney General's Office frequently supplies legal research and consults with local counsel in order to aid in the defense. Normally, the attorney general does not participate in the trial unless the outcome would also affect other portions of the state.

All suits to recover funds for the state are brought by the Attorney General's Office, whether the suit is against a local official, a state official or a private individual or organization.

No local public official is automatically entitled to be defended at public expense. State law provides that a city (or county) can investigate or provide legal counsel for its officials if the governing body chooses to do so. There is no provision that the city or county must do so.

When an official is the defendant in a suit brought against him by the state, the state will not pay for his defense. In our opinion, it would be grossly unfair to the taxpayers of this state to ask them to defend, at their expense, an elected official who is accused to illegal actions against these same taxpayers.

The conflict most often reported by the press occurs when two opposing state interests are involved in a lawsuit. This happened, for instance, when the Attorney General's Office contested a Public Service Commission ruling which raised utility rates.

A chancery court judge rules that the attorney general had to represent the PSC and therefore could not bring suit against it.

The Mississippi Supreme Court overruled, saying that the attorney general represented the citizens and could alwyas bring suit in their behalf.

RECENT OPINIONS Teachers' Personal Leave:

The Attorney General's Office recently cancelled a prior opinion in holing that a teacher's personal leave does not have to be restricted to professionally related activities. The leave time may be used for "any personal reason." Employment of Relatives:

Board of supervisors cannot hire members of their families for road crews or other duties under their supervision, according to an opinion given by the Attorney General's Office.

Section 25-4-105(1) of the state code provides that "no public servant shall use his office position to obtain pecuniary benefit for himself other than that compensation provided for by law, or to obtain pecuniary benefit for any relative or any business with which he is associated." Part-time Judges

Justice Court judges are not required to keep full-time office hours, a recent Attorney General opinion says. They are expected to devote "sufficient time so as to adequately perform their duties.'

Governor Bill Allain has named three new appointees and one reappointment to the State Board of Corrections.

board members, who are ject to Senate confirmation, are Isaac K. Byrd Jr. of Jackson, attorney, who was recommended by the Mississippi State Bar Association and who will serve a four-year term; Michael Malski of Amory, attorney, who will represent the 1980 Second Congressional District and serve a six-year term; and Jennifer Buford of Meridian, comprehensive planner for the East Central Planning and Development District, who will serve through June 30, 1985.

Buford replaces state Rep. Charles Young of Meridian, who resigned from the board, and represents the Third Congressional District.

Reappointed to the Board is Dr. Virginia Tolbert of Ruleville, a medical doctor, who was recommended by the Mississippi State Medical Association and will serve a four-year term.

Governor Allain also announced his appointees to the Mississippi Commission on Natural Resources. State Forestry Commission and Biloxi Regional Medical Center Trustees. The two state boards require Senate confirmation.

Appointees to the Commission on Natural Resources are Marshall Watkins of Jackson, self-employed businessman, and J. K. Hurdle of Holly Springs, farmer and businessman. Both will serve seven-year terms.

Charles L. Rogers Sr. of Columbia, forestry businessman, is the Governor's nominee to the State Forestry Commission for a six-year

STUDENTS MEET

Governor Allain will host the state's outstanding college and high school students at the fourth annual Governor's Colloquium on Science, Engineering, and Technology on April 10 at the Downtown Holiday Inn. Jackson.

The Colloquium, co-sponsored by the Governor's Office and the Mississippi Academy of Sciences, honors outstanding college science students and student leaders, nominated by their respective institutions. Concurrent with the Colloquium is the Governor's Scholars Program which honors valedictorians of Mississippi's high s chools.

"Mississippi's Petroleum Industry: A Catalyst for Technological Development" is the theme for the one-day conference. Keynote speaker for the 7 p.m. dinner session is Alan M. Warren, president and chief operating officer, Callon Petroleum Company, Natchez.

Governor Allain will address the students during the 1:30 p.m. General Assembly and the dinner session.

"Mississippi should take every opportunity to honor our outstanding students and to encourage them to seek careers within our state's borders," Governor Allain said. "The Colloquium and Scholars Program have proven to be effective means of introducing our students to state business and government leaders, thereby paving the way; for them to use their talents for the continued growth of our state.

"Especially during this period when all Mississippians are focusing on ex-cellence in education should we be aware of the potential for training our students in technological fields to meet the employment needs of the future," the Governor said

Council tables request to up rail speed limits

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Bay St. Louis City Council has tabled a request from the Louisiana/Mississippi/Alabama Rapid Rail Transit Commission to raise speed limits for trains passing through the ci-

The tri-state commission wants speed limits raised to expedite Gulf Coast Ltd., an Amtrak commuter train between Mobile and New Orleans scheduled to begin operations April 29 in connection with the 1984 World's Fair.

At Tuesday's meeting Mayor Larry Bennett read a resolution adopted by the commission at a March 2 meeting in New Orleans, forwarded by Commission Chairman Charles Pace.

The resolution requests the governing bodies of incorporated cities in areas along the route of Gulf Coast, Ltd. to take 'whatever legislative action may be necessary' to raise the legal maximum rate of speed on passenger trains to 45 miles per hour.

The resolution further requests that after the World's Fair, city officials consider raising speed limits on freight trains if the safety record on passenger trains seems to warrant it.

Bennett reported that he has written to Pace saying he personally cannot support the resolution.

"I don't think any train should come through Bay St. Louis at 45 miles per

"I also told Pace I was disappointed that the commission has not kept the city abreast of developments and what their intentions are," he said, noting that the city has never been officially advised that the Gulf Coast Ltd. will not stop in Bay St. Louis.

"I do not want to support this resolution at all!'

'We have no idea what chemicals run through this city," Bennett commented, adding that the city has been lucky 'so far' in having only one or two minor accidents.

"Those are my sentiments exactly." said Councilman Sheldon Seuzeneau.

"I want to make a motion to put Pace on notice we won't take action until we know exactly what's going on," Councilman James Thriffiley said.

"We can use that as some kind of leverage to get answers to Larry's questions.'

"I've been trying since 1978 to lease the old waiting room and restroom of the old depot, along with the grounds, to turn into a park," Bennett commented.

"The only answer Seaboard System Railroad officials will give me is that in case of any kind of disaster they want to open the depot for dispatching trains." "I have told them they can put that into the lease." Bennett noted the 'deplorable' condition of the railroad grounds and noise and traffic problems in connection with the railroad.

"It doesn't do one miserable thing for the City of Bay St. Louis!" he said.

Bennett said he had had two conversations with Amtrak officials in Washington, asking for 'something in writing as to where the World's Fair train will stop.'

"I'm not writing them again," he said, but the council approved Thriffiley's motion and Favre said yesterday he would be writing to the tri-state commission within the next few days to report the council's action in tabling its request.

Also Tuesday, council members tabled a request to sign a plat for conversion of Louisville Garden Apartments to condominiums but told Gary Poisson of Slidell, La. they would approve or deny the request at a 5:30 p.m. recess meeting tonight.

Poisson, real estate agent for the project, told the council some of the apartments, which he said are 17 or 18 years old, are being renovated by Ellis Management.

The 71 individual units, he said, are being offered to current residents at 'virtually the same price as they've been paying for rent.

Depending on style and location, he said, one-bedroom units are being sold for $41,700 and two-bedroom units for $52,500 to $53,200.

But current residents, he added, can buy the units for 'substantially less,' DCA cleers with introductory prices, rent rebates and waiver of closing costs up to $2,000. According to Poisson, 95 percent financing is available to qualified purchasers.

A special assistance program, he said, will give a two year guaranteed lease to current residents who are over 65 or physically handicaped.

He said the majority of the apartments, about 55 of which are now occupied, have been rented on a month-tomonth basis.

'We are honoring whatever leases residents have to the fullest extent," Poisson said.

"No one is being forced out on the street." Current rental rates, he said, range from $250 to $350 per month. "We are offering first refusal to all residents, and they have until April 30 to make a decision to buy or not to

Poisson assured the council that the condominiums will not be a time-share

"If it were," he said, "I wouldn't be involved in it."

Condominium owners, he said, would hold an undivided common interest in the grounds and pool area.

Although the city has no ordinances governing condominiums, City Attorney Joseph Gex said yesterday that the same regulations for subdivisions would apply to this project, and that the sellers cannot proceed without council approval.

In other business the council:

-Granted a request from Geraldine Lang for a proclamation designating April as Red Cross Membership Drive Month in Bay St. Louis.

-Accepted three appraisals on land adjoining the Waveland Regional

Hancock County Purchase Clerk Audit Report September 30, 1983

March 26, 1984

The Board of Supervisors Hancock County, Mississippi

We have reviewed the internal accounting records and supporting documentation, of the Purchase Clerk of Hancock County, Mississippi, that we considered relevant to the criteria established by Sections 31-7-101 through 31-7-129 of the Mississippi Code of 1972 as amended. Our reivew included tests of compliance with such procedures during the period from October 1, 1982, through September 30, 1983.

Our tests included, but were not limited to, testing of paid invoices in the Chancery Clerk's office and inspection on a test basis of the minutes of the Board of Supervisors. Our testing of transactions randomly selected from the claims docket in the Chancery Clerk's office encompassed 123 requisitions, or approximately twelve percent (12%) of the total number of requisitions processed through the Purchase Clerk's office during the year.

The objective of internal accounting control is to provide reasonable, but not absolute, ssurance as to the safeguarding of assets against loss from unauthorized use or disposition, and the reliability of financial records for preparing financial statements and maintaining accountability for assets. The concept of reasonable assurance recognizes that the cost of a system of internal accounting control should not exceed the benefits derived and also recognizes that the evaluation of these factors necessarily requires estimates and judgments by responsible officials.

There are inherent limitations that should be recognized in considering the potential effectiveness of any system of internal control. In the performance of most control procedures, errors can result from misunderstanding of instructions, mistakes of judgment, carelessness, or other personal factors. Control procedures whose effectiveness depends upon segregation of duties can be circumvented by collusion. Similarly, control procedures can be circumvented intentionally by individuals. Further, projection of any evaluation of internal control to future periods is subject to the risk that the procedures may become inadequate because of changes in conditions, and that the degree of compliance with the procedures may deteriorate.

We understand that procedures in conformity with the criteria referred to in the first paragraph of this report are considered by the Board of Supervisors to be adequate for its purpose in accordance with the provi-sions of Sections 31-7-101 through 31-7-129 of the Mississippi Code of 1972 as amended, and that procedures not in conformity therewith indicate madequacy for such purposes. Based on this understanding and on our review in our opinion the purchasing records and internal accounting control procedures of the Purchase Clerk of Hanprocedures of the Purchase Clerk of Han-cock County, Mississippi, during the period of October 1, 1962, artisugh September 30, 1983, were adequate for the purpose of the Board of Supervisors and were in substan-tial compliance with the requirements of Sections 31-7-101 through 31-7-129 of the Mississippi Code of 1972 as amended.

Hancock superintendent must form committee

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County School District superintendent of education must form a staff development committee by June 1 to meet State Department of Education guidelines, James Pair, the assistant superintendent reported at a Monday night County School Board meeting

"You need to think about who will serve on the committee," Pair told the board.

"The Education Reform Act will change the way a lot of things are done in Mississippi." Pair said regarding impending instructional requirements.

He explained the committee is part of the initial phase of the act in which teachers and administrators will eventually be required to improve instruction methods and teaching skills through mandatory attendance at workshops and conferences.

Pair said by the 1985-86 school year a merit system will begin in which these professionals will attend workshops, not to receive any increase in pay, but to maintain their jobs as public school employees.

Terrell Randolph, the superintendent, will form the commmittee which will consist of teachers, administrators, board members and lay people of the county, Pair reported.

The committee and superintendent will then annually formulate and sub-

The assistant superintendent reported that the state department has requested the legislature fund the new program in each school district at a rate of $20 per teacher unit.

He explained the state defines teacher units as every 24 students in a school district.

The school district will also receive $120 this year for each second grade unit to provide additional training for teachers and assistant teachers, Pair reported.

Under 14 Division Bay-Waveland Tire held Knights of Columbus to two goals until late in the game, but two quick last minute goals sealed a 4-0 win for Knights of Columbus. Knights of Columbus and Gulf Coast Waste face off against each other Friday at 4 p.m. to determine first place. It is a must win for Knights of Columbus because a tie will give Gulf Coast Waste the title due to fewer goals scored against it. Each team has identical won-lost records, having beaten each other once in previous meetings. District Tournament Schedule

He and his wife have been working with the untouchables since 1965. As a means of fighting prejudice and oppression against the lower classes, they helped form the Center for National Integration to work for a castless society in

Gandhi described conditions in one of the villages inhabited by untouchables. People lived on wild roots and berries, he said. "They had no clothes to wear. In fact, in many of the households we visited, the women wouldn't come out of Arun Gandhi, like his grand- the huts because they had no father, has worked to improve clothes on. those families first got a glass Still, India is rapidly growing into two nations- an urban world of education and affluence, and a rural world of poverty, he said. "One day, I'm afraid the two will clash. We are trying to put off this explosion.'

Gandhi said the Indian government has strayed from his grandfather's proposals for small industries in the countryside. People from rural areas are forced to come to urban areas to find work, separating them from their families and creating slums. He has made brief tours of the American rural South. If funding can be arranged, Gandhi said he would like to spend an extended period of time in the South, comparing the plight of American blacks to that of the untouchables in India. "Perhaps the people here could benefit from some of our experiments in India," he

When he was 12, Gandhi spent a year with his grandfather. "Even though it was 1946, one of the most crucial years in Indian history— just before independence— my grandfather earmarked one hour for me every day, between 6 and 7," he said. "I don't think even the British prime minister could have intervened during that time."

He told of throwing away a pencil his grandfather had given him, thinking it too short to use. His grandfather sent him out in the dark with a flashlight to look for it.

It took him two hours to find it. "When I showed it to him, he said it could be used for another 15 days," he said. "My grandfather believed in wasting nothing, whether it be a pencil or a piece of dry

He called the recent commercial film about his grandfather substantially correct. Tve seen the film three times. I've been moved by it tremendously and I think it's basically very accurate. It projects his image and his message very well."

Some of Mahatma Gandhi's followers have strayed from he spirit of his message, his grandson said. "They place a lot of emphasis on the minor issues, about what people eat and what they wear, and not what they do. My grandfather was not a dogmatic person, not a person concerned with the little things.'

Arun Gandhi himself strays from the traditional garb worn by his grandfather. But he has not strayed from his grandfather's teachings, said Mrs. Morrison, who has been to India and knows of his humanitarian

STAR STUDENT—Senior Kristin Ling, shown here with her science teacher Dr. S.L. Sabharwal, has received the Star Student award from Coast Episcopal High School, based on her scores on the college entrance exams and excellence in academic achievements. Ling, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Ling of Waveland, is a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, is being considered for a Presidential Scholar's Medallion and has been nominated for the Presidential Scholars program. She has been named to Who's Who Among American High School Students and the National Honor Society, and has earned numerous scholastic achievement awards. Ling cites Sabharwal as having played a large role in her scholastic development and named him Star Teacher, an honor he has received twice before. Sabharwal, who has won awards for photography and marine science education, has taught at Coast Episcopal High School for the past 13 years. (Staff photo by Nan Patton Ehrbright)

"Many people in India also dian businessman. wonder what the grandson of Mahatma Gandhi looks like," Arun Gandhi tells the crowd, "When they see me they're tremendously disappointed. They expect the grandson to look like the grandfather thin and short, wearing a little piece of cloth around the waist. I hope you are not disapointed.

Arun Gandhi, 49, the second son of the second son of the legendary Indian figure who led the non-violent movement for India's independence from England, spoke recently at the Center for the Study of Southern Culture at The University of Mississippi.

His visit to Oxford was part of a swing through Alabama and Mississippi arranged by

He is a middle-aged, dark- Vicksburg, who had met Gandhi and his wife, Sunanda, in Bomby.

The grandson's life has parallels to that of the grandfather, who as a young Indian attorney not too long out of a London law school had traveled to South Africa to handle some legal matters for an In-

Despite his first class ticket, he was thrown out of a first class railroad coach, a victim of apartheid. Gandhi was to spend many years in South Africa. When he did return to India, he left Arun's father there to continue his work. Years later, on a stormy south African night, 15-year-old Arun could find no place to sit in the railroad coach for nonwhites. He boarded an empty car in front, only to be thrown off. The car was for whites on-themselves out of the morass.'

Arun Gandhi is a journalist and a social worker. He worked for The Indian Times newspaper in Bombay for 23 years. Now a free-lance journalist, he has written three books.

He and his wife have been working with the untouchables since 1965. As a means of fighting prejudice and oppression against the lower classes, they helped form the Center for National Integration to work for a castless society in

said. "He spent many years villagers, patting up collateral trying to help them lift for government loans so that each village family could purchase a cow in order to sell milk, a drink which most of them had been too poor ever to have themselves. The loans were made, and each family was able to buy a cow. "It was in 1966," he said. "That was the year they first tasted milk. The scene was so poignant. I can still remember it, when > those families first got a glass

Still, India is rapidly growing into two nations- an urban world of education and affluence, and a rural world of poverty, he said. "One day, I'm afraid the two will clash. We are trying to put off this explosion.'

Gandhi said the Indian government has straved from his grandfather's proposals for small industries in the countryside. People from rural areas are forced to come families and creating slums.

He has made brief tours of the American rural South. If funding can be arranged, Gandhi said he would like to spend an extended period of time in the South, comparing the plight of American blacks to that of the untouchables in India. "Perhaps the people here could benefit from some of our experiments in India," he

When he was 12, Gandhi spent a year with his grandfather. "Even though it was 1946, one of the most crucial years in Indian history- just before independence- my grandfather earmarked one hour for me every day, between 6 and 7," he said. "I don't think even the British prime minister could have intervened during that time."

He told of throwing away a pencil his grandfather had given him, thinking it too short to use. His grandfather sent him out in the dark with a flashlight to look for it.

It took him two hours to find it. "When I showed it to him, he said it could be used for another 15 days," he said. "My grandfather believed in wasting nothing, whether it be a pencil or a piece of dry bread."

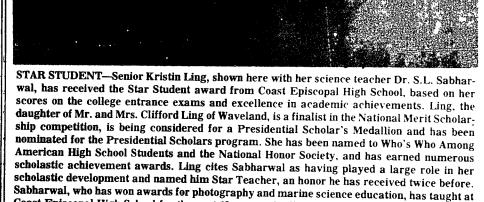

He called the recent commercial film about his grandfather substantially correct. "I've seen the film three times. I've been moved by it tremendously and I think it's basically very accurate. It projects his image and his message very well.'

Some of Mahatma Gandhi's ollowers have strayed from he spirit of his message, his grandson said. "They place a lot of emphasis on the minor issues, about what people eat and what they wear, and not what they do. My grandfather was not a dogmatic person, not a person concerned with the little things." Arun Gandhi himself strays from the traditional garb worn by his grandfather. But he has not strayed from his grandfather's teachings, said Mrs. Morrison, who has been to India and knows of his humanitarian

NASSP sponsors Leadership Week

The value of participation in planning commissioners, co-curricular activities in schools cannot be overlooked as America celebrates National Student Leadership Week this month, according to Scott Thomson, executive director, National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

Schools throughout the nation will host activities to emphasize the importance of leadership development this month. The week, April 23-27, is sponsored by NASSP's Division of Student Activities.

"There has been considerable attention during the past year to the need for students to develop academic skills," said Thomson.

"These skills will certainly be necessary in the complex technological world we are entering. Students should develop their knowledge in math, writing, foreign languages, science and computer literacy."

"At the same time we must realize that the very nature of our future society demands the type of skills that are best taught through student activity programs," he said.

The complexity America's future will require people to be effective leaders and communicators and to know how to work cooperatively with other peo-

"Our schools have a responsibility to develop these skills, and a most appropriate place is through student activity programs," said Thomson.

These activities provide opportunities for students to organize and plan, to assume leadership roles, to gain recognition and identity, to experience self-governance, to develop physically and emotionally, and to mature social-

"Students can learn to work together in a band or on a yearbook staff," indicated Thomson. "They can develop leadership skills as a club officer or newspaper editor. They learn to make decisions voting for class officers or serving on student councils.'

"These skills will be essential in a demanding future."

Thomson pointed out that the accomplishments of adults re significantly correlated to their 'nonacademic' experiences as students in

Sometimes parents think they are helping a child by telling him it is his or her baby. But how can it be the child's baby when Mother is constantly absorbed in baby business?

-Things may work out betwhat the older child can really expect from the newborn. A baby will turn his head toward your hand if you stoke his cheek -softly. A baby will curl her toes if you stroke the soles of her feet —gently. She will stare at a face or a shiny pie plate, or follow a bunch of keys with her eyes, but she will not get up and play -yet.

May 8, he said, is the absolute deadline for applications for the summer term and July 31 for the fall semester.

For freshman admission, students are required to file an application and submit a qualifying ACT score of at least 15- except engineering majors, who should score at least 20— and a high school transcript with seven semester of coursework showing at least 15 units. Of those units, at least three should be in English, two in mathematics and two in social sciences

CENTS OFF CO

DO PRINTER OF THE PROPERTY OF

Redeem manufacturers' "cents off" coupons by buying the items and we will DOUBLE the value stated on the coupons, with a minimum $5 purchase. Our "DOUBLE SAVINGS" applies to manufacturers' coupons you clip from newspapers and magazines—not "free", tobacco, or other retailers' coupons. The only exceptions are:

Jitney Jungle will redeem DOUBLE the value of manufacturers' coupons up to 50°.

Coupons over 50° will be redeemed for $1.

Coupons over $1 will be redeemed at face value.

Only one coffee coupon (including vacuum and instant) may be doubled per order. If the double coupon value exceeds the

If the double coupon value exceeds the retail price of the item, you will receive the item free, with no cash refund.

One coupon per item will be redeemed for double the value. All others will be redeemed at face value.
